

Editorial

Hello! Greetings to all. I hope everyone is safe and fine.

Dear Friends,

Presently our salutations and communication patterns also have been changed. The reason is Corona Pandemic. For more than last six months the world is passing through the bizarre situation. The virus which measures in nanometers has made to collapse the colossal systems the human civilization has created. It is worrying even the developed and most powerful nations on the earth. It has underlined the shortcomings of human knowledge development.

But the work and research of humans for many centuries will not go in vain. The knowledge and labor of the scientists, scholars and researchers, working day and night to come out with the remedy for sustaining humanity, will yield out a successful result. 'Navjyot' has always aimed at the quality and applied research. The present issue of 'Navjyot' discusses various aspects of human life in relation to COVID pandemic. Attempts has been made to come out with the resolutions to moderate or eradicate the adverse impacts of the pandemic in different sectors. The educational, economic, social, political, agricultural, familial, individual, psychological, health, etc. issues have been studied and discussed in the issue. I have firm belief that the knowledge derived by the researchers and disseminated through this journal will be great help to the further investigators. It shall prove an important station in the journey of human sustenance. Wish you all the health, prosperity and free breath. Wish you all Very Happy Diwali.
